

CURZON

BEYOND
PERSONAL IDENTITY

DŌGEN, NISHIDA, AND A
PHENOMENOLOGY OF NO-SELF

Gereon Kopf

| | |
|--------------------------------------|------|
| Preface | ix |
| Introduction | xi |
| Dōgen Kigen | xii |
| Nishida Kitarō | xiv |
| Methodological Considerations | xvii |

PART ONE: Personal Identity Revisited

| | |
|--|----|
| CHAPTER ONE: The Problem of Personal Identity | 3 |
| Introduction | 3 |
| The concept of personal identity | 5 |
| Three theories of personal identity | 8 |
| introduction | 8 |
| personal identity qua substance | 9 |
| personal identity qua bodily continuity | 15 |
| personal identity qua psychological continuity | 18 |
| The concept of personal identity revealed as a convenient fiction | 22 |
| personal identity as further fact | 22 |
| the indeterminacy of personal identity | 24 |
| personal identity is not "what matters" | 25 |
| The construction of personal identity | 28 |
| personal identity and intentionality | 28 |
| the emergence of two selves | 31 |
| Summary | 33 |

PART TWO: Zen Buddhism and Phenomenology on Self-Awareness

| | |
|--|--------|
| CHAPTER TWO: Selfhood | 37 |
| Introduction | 37 |
| outline of part two | 37 |
| the problem of selfhood | 38 |
| Cogito and self-consciousness: a phenomenology of the self | 40 |
| the conception of the cogito | 40 |
| cogito as intentional act | 44 |
| self-consciousness | 46 |
| the dual self | 49 |
| summary | 52 |
| "To study the self is to forget the self" – selfhood in Dōgen | 53 |
| no-self in Buddhism | 53 |
| introduction to Dōgen | 55 |
| Dōgen's "self" as positional act | 58 |
| self-awareness in Dōgen | 63 |
| somaticity and self-awareness | 67 |
| Nishida on selfhood | 69 |
| introduction | 69 |
| the dual self | 70 |
| non-positional awareness | 73 |
| self-awareness and internal negation | 75 |
| conclusion | 79 |
| Summary | 80 |
| CHAPTER THREE: Otherness | 83 |
| Introduction | 83 |
| Alterity and intersubjectivity | 87 |
| existential ambiguity of self and other | 87 |
| excursion: psychic synchronization and psychic entanglement in Jung | 94 |
| "To cast off self and other" – alterity in Dōgen | 97 |
| alterity in early Buddhism | 97 |
| Dōgen and otherness | 99 |
| the moment of alterity | 101 |
| the paradox of alterity | 103 |
| intersubjectivity | 105 |
| I and Thou in Nishida | 110 |
| The interaction of I and Thou | 111 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| the disappearance of the self | 113 |
| non-thetic awareness | 117 |
| the modality of expression | 119 |
| Summary | 121 |
| CHAPTER FOUR: Continuity of Experience | 124 |
| Introduction | 124 |
| The notion of continuity | 125 |
| No-self and continuity in Early Buddhism | 132 |
| impermanence and permanence | 133 |
| impermanence and continuity | 137 |
| the collapse of continuity | 141 |
| From dharma-position to dharmā-position – continuity in Dōgen | 144 |
| From the present to the present – continuity in Nishida | 153 |
| from the created to the creating | 154 |
| from the present to the present | 157 |
| Summary | 161 |
| CHAPTER FIVE: Temporality | 164 |
| Introduction | 164 |
| A phenomenology of time | 165 |
| abstract time | 166 |
| phenomenal time | 170 |
| lived time | 173 |
| temporality and the problem of free will | 175 |
| Existence-time – time in Dōgen | 177 |
| time in early Buddhism | 177 |
| time in Dōgen | 178 |
| inauthentic experience of time | 179 |
| authentic experience of time | 182 |
| the immediate now | 184 |
| The non-relative present – Nishida on time | 187 |
| introduction | 187 |
| linear time and circular time | 188 |
| the problem of repeatability | 191 |
| dialectical time | 193 |
| eternal present | 195 |
| Summary | 197 |
| Temporality and personal identity | 200 |

PART THREE: Zen Conceptions of Identity

| | |
|--|-----|
| CHAPTER SIX: A Zen Phenomenology of Experience | 205 |
| Introduction | 205 |
| A Mahāyāna Buddhist phenomenology of experience | 208 |
| The abstract world | 213 |
| The phenomenal world | 216 |
| The lived world | 218 |
| introduction | 218 |
| lived world as epistemic reorientation | 219 |
| lived world as activity | 222 |
| summary | 224 |
| The actual world | 225 |
| non-positional awareness | 225 |
| the dialectic of the actual world | 228 |
| The question of impermanence | 232 |
| | |
| CHAPTER SEVEN: Personhood as Presenting | 235 |
| Introduction | 235 |
| The concept of presenting | 235 |
| Dōgen's stratification of presenting | 235 |
| the role of the universal | 238 |
| Synchronic non-duality | 240 |
| the dialectic of presenting in Dōgen | 240 |
| the dialectic of presenting in Nishida | 245 |
| Diachronic non-duality | 248 |
| the non-dual structure of impermanence | 248 |
| presenting qua from the created to the creating | 252 |
| identity and non-duality | 255 |
| Postscript: presenting is "what matters" | 256 |
| | |
| Notes | 262 |
| Glossary of Japanese Terms | 278 |
| Key to Texts by Dōgen and Nishida | 284 |
| Works Cited | 286 |
| Index | 294 |