

2ND EDITION

Basic Issues in MEDIEVAL PHILOSOPHY

Selected Readings Presenting the Interactive Discourses Among the Major Figures
EDITED BY RICHARD N. BOSLEY & MARTIN M. TWEEDALE

CONTENTS

Preface · xiii

Introduction · xv

TOPIC I: NECESSITY, CONTINGENCY, AND CAUSATION · 1

Introduction · 3

I.1. Aristotle · 5

I.1.1. The four Causes · 5

I.1.2. Senses of the Necessary · 5

I.1.3. Causation, Chance, and Spontaneity · 6

I.1.4. Science and the Accidental · 10

I.2. Avicenna · 13

I.2.1. Two Kinds of Existents · 13

I.2.2. Proof of the Necessary of Existence · 13

I.2.3. What is Possible of Existence is Necessary of Existence from something else · 14

I.2.4. Characteristics of the Necessary of Existence · 16

I.3. Abelard · 18

I.3.1. That God can only do what He does do · 18

I.4. Al-Ghazali and Averroes · 22

I.4.1. Whether the First Cause is simple · 23

I.4.2. About the Natural Sciences · 26

I.5. St. Thomas Aquinas · 37

I.5.1. How absolute Necessity can exist in Created Things · 37

I.5.2. That God does not will other things in a necessary way · 40

I.5.3. Difficulties in the Concept of Will · 41

I.6. Siger of Brabant · 43

I.6.1. Commentary on Necessity · 43

I.7. The Condemnation of 1277 · 47

I.7.1. Extending God's Power · 47

I.8. Henry of Ghent · 51

I.8.1. The Finiteness of the World's Past · 51

I.9. John Duns Scotus · 53

I.9.1. Proof of a First Cause · 53

I.9.2. The First Cause causes contingently · 57

I.9.3. The Omnipotence of God · 58

I.9.4. Impossibility · 61

I.9.5. Could God make things better than He does? · 63

I.10. William of Ockham · 66

I.10.1. Essentially ordered Causes · 66

I.10.2. Can it be proved that there exists a first productive Cause? · 67

I.10.3. Can it be proved that there exists a first conserving Cause? · 70

I.10.4. Is God able to do Everything that it is possible for a Creature to do? · 71

I.10.5. Can God do things which He neither does do nor will do? · 75

I.10.6. Does not being able to do the Impossible belong to God before not being able to be done by God belongs to the Impossible? · 79

I.10.7. Can God make a better world than this one? · 81

TOPIC II: IS THERE AN INFINITELY PERFECT BEING? · 85

Introduction · 87

II.1. Aristotle · 88

II.1.1. Why there must be an eternal Mover that is not itself in Motion · 88

II.1.2. The first Mover has no Size · 90

II.1.3. The Principle on which depend the Heavens and Nature · 92

II.2. St. Anselm · 95

II.2.1. The Being “a greater than which cannot be thought” · 95

II.3. Al-Ghazali and Averroes · 97

II.3.1. Can we prove that the First Being is incorporeal? · 97

II.4. St. Thomas Aquinas · 102

II.4.1. God's Existence is not self-evident to us · 102

II.4.2. The five Ways · 103

II.4.3. A Being which just is its own Existence · 105

II.5. John Duns Scotus · 107

II.5.1. The first efficient Cause has infinite Power · 107

II.5.2. The Infinity of the most excellent Being · 111

II.6. William of Ockham · 113

II.6.1. Why the first efficient Cause cannot be proved to have infinite Power · 113

II.6.2. Why it cannot be proven that the most perfect Being is infinite in Perfection · 117

II.6.3. Aristotle did not intend to prove the Infinity of the First Cause · 120

TOPIC III: COULD THE WORLD BE ETERNALLY EXISTENT? · 125

Introduction · 127

III.1. Aristotle · 130

III.1.1. Did Motion ever have a Beginning? Will it ever end? · 130

III.2. St. Augustine · 133

III.2.1. What is Time? · 133

III.2.2. How Creatures have always been but are not co-eternal with God · 140

III.3. Al-Ghazali and Averroes · 142

III.3.1. Is the Doctrine of the “Philosophers” as regards the Production of the World coherent? · 142

III.4. Moses Maimonides · 162

- III.4.1. Arguments of the Mutakallemim purporting to show that the Universe was created out of nothing · 162
- III.4.2. Different views on the Eternity of the Universe among those who believe God exists · 166
- III.4.3. That the Universe is eternal has not been proven · 170
- III.4.4. The view that God has produced the Universe from all
Eternity and how it is to be evaluated · 179

III.5. St. Thomas Aquinas · 183

- III.5.1. That it is not necessary for Creatures to have existed always · 183
- III.5.2. That God could have created an eternal World · 184

III.6. Henry of Ghent · 189

- III.6.1. That a created thing cannot have existed from Eternity · 189
- III.6.2. Contradictions involved in the view that God makes eternal things · 195

III.7. John Duns Scotus · 196

- III.7.1. Arguments on both sides and their Refutations · 196

III.8. William of Ockham · 211

- III.8.1. Could God make a World that has existed from Eternity? · 211

TOPIC IV: DETERMINISM, FREE WILL, AND DIVINE FOREKNOWLEDGE · 225

Introduction · 227

IV.1. Aristotle · 229

- IV.1.1. Determinism and the Truth of future contingent Statements · 229

IV.2. Boethius · 231

- IV.2.1. How can God know everything about the Future? · 231

IV.3. St. Anselm · 240

- IV.3.1. The Harmony of Foreknowledge and Free Will · 240

IV.4. St. Thomas Aquinas · 248

- IV.4.1. Does God’s Knowledge extend to Future Contingents? · 248

IV.5. Siger of Brabant · 251

- IV.5.1. How Contingency arises in the World · 251

IV.6. John Duns Scotus · 262

- IV.6.1. How God can know Future Contingents by knowing His own Will · 262

- IV.7. William of Ockham · 278
- IV.7.1. Why Scotus's Solution will not work · 278
- IV.7.2. Propositions in the Present tense but about the Future · 283

TOPIC V: IDENTITY AND DISTINCTION · 285

Introduction · 287

V.1. Aristotle · 289

V.1.1. Senses of 'same' · 289

V.1.2. Senses of 'One' · 289

V.1.3. How the Motion of the Agent is the same as the Motion in the Recipient, yet different · 291

V.2. Boethius · 293

V.2.1. Sameness and Difference in the Trinity · 293

V.3. Abelard · 296

V.3.1. How to have many Persons in one God · 296

V.4. John Duns Scotus · 304

V.4.1. Qualified and unqualified Distinctions · 304

V.5. William of Ockham · 309

V.5.1. No formal Distinction without Real Distinction · 309

TOPIC VI: UNIVERSALS AND PARTICULARS · 313

Introduction · 315

VI.1. Plato · 319

VI.1.1. A World based on Archetypes · 319

VI.2. Aristotle · 325

VI.2.1. Categories and the things there are · 325

VI.2.2. Universals and Particulars · 327

VI.2.3. The Problem of Universals · 327

VI.2.4. Are first Principles Universals? · 328

VI.2.5. Substance and Universals · 328

VI.3. Porphyry · 331

VI.3.1. The five "Predicables" · 331

VI.4. Boethius · 337

VI.4.1. The "deeper Questions" · 337

VI.5. Garlandus Compotista · 340

VI.5.1. The Predicables are just Utterances · 340

VI.6. Abelard · 349

VI.6.1. The Existence and the Nature of Universals · 349

VI.6.2. Universals and Signification · 362

VI.6.3. What Propositions signify · 363

VI.7. Avicenna · 370

VI.7.1. The Nature of Universals · 370

VI.7.2. The Essences of things · 371

VI.8. John Duns Scotus · 373

VI.8.1. Natures are not of themselves individuated · 373

VI.8.2. What makes a Substance individual · 378

VI.8.3. Is a Universal something in things? · 382

VI.9. William of Ockham · 387

VI.9.1. Universals and Distinction · 387

VI.9.2. The Distinction of First and Second Intentions · 393

VI.9.3. The Synonymy of Concrete and Abstract Nouns · 395

VI.9.4. Is a Universal a Singular? · 397

VI.9.5. Is every Universal a Quality of the Mind? · 398

VI.9.6. Is a Category made up of things outside the Mind or of Concepts of Things? · 400

TOPIC VII: SKEPTICISM · 403

Introduction · 405

VII.1. St. Augustine · 408

VII.1.1. Arguments against Academic Skepticism · 408

VII.1.2. Internal Knowledge · 417

VII.1.3. Can we know there is something above Human Reason? · 418

VII.2. Henry of Ghent · 428

VII.2.1. Knowledge requires Divine Illumination of the Mind · 428

VII.3. Siger of Brabant · 435

VII.3.1. Some Judgments are to be trusted · 435

VII.4. John Duns Scotus · 437

VII.4.1. Refutation of Henry and of Skepticism generally · 437

VII.5. Nicholas of Autrecourt · 453

VII.5.1. Certainty and the Principle of Non-Contradiction · 453

TOPIC VIII: VIRTUE AND REASON, SIN AND SEX · 459

Introduction · 461

VIII.1. Aristotle · 463

VIII.1.1. Excellence (Virtue) and the Mean · 463

VIII.1.2. Ethics and Deliberation · 470

VIII.2. St. Augustine · 472

VIII.2.1. What is the Supreme Good for Human Beings? · 472

VIII.2.2. The Ultimate Good is not to be found in this Life · 474

VIII.2.3. How Order pervades everything · 477

VIII.2.4. The Works of Reason · 479

VIII.2.5. Why Adultery is evil · 484

VIII.2.6. Lust, a Penalty for the Original Sin · 486

VIII.3. Al-Ghazali · 495

VIII.3.1. Hope · 495

VIII.3.2. Fear · 499

VIII.4. Abelard · 506

VIII.4.1. What Sin and Vice consist in · 506

VIII.5. St. Thomas Aquinas · 517

VIII.5.1. Goodness and Badness in outward Acts · 517

VIII.5.2. Is Pleasure bad? · 523

VIII.5.3. Is Enjoyment in the Thought of Fornication a Sin? · 524

VIII.5.4. Why Lechery is a Sin · 526

VIII.5.5. Sex in the Garden of Eden · 530

TOPIC IX: THE "DARKNESS WHICH IS BEYOND INTELLECT" · 533

Introduction · 535

IX.1. Plotinus · 536

IX.1.1. The One that is the Source of Being · 536

IX.1.2. The Intelligence and its Relation to the Soul · 543

IX.2. Pseudo-Dionysius the Areopagite · 547

IX.2.1. The Transcendent Good · 547

IX.2.2. How God can be called Wisdom · 549

IX.2.3. The Mystical Theology · 552

IX.2.4. The Divine Darkness · 555

IX.3. John Scotus Eriugena · 556

IX.3.1. Things that are and things that are not · 556

IX.3.2. God as Hyper-being · 559

IX.3.3. God's Diffusion into all things · 560

IX.3.4. The Return of the Many to the One · 563

IX.3.5. The three Motions of the Soul · 565

IX.3.6. The Indefinability of God · 569

IX.3.7. The Self-creation of the Divine Darkness · 573

IX.3.8. Man contains all Creatures · 575

IX.3.9. The Return of all things to God · 578

IX.4. Ibn Tufail · 580

IX.4.1. The Experience of total Self-annihilation · 580

IX.5. Meister Eckhart · 585

IX.5.1. On the Names of God · 585

IX.5.2. "God is One" · 590

IX.5.3. The Intellect perceives God bare of Goodness and Being · 591

IX.5.4. The "Negation of Negation" · 594

IX.5.5. The Attraction of the Soul to the One · 595

IX.5.6. "On Detachment" · 596

TOPIC X: BODY, SOUL, AND INTELLECT · 603

Introduction · 605

X.1. Aristotle · 613

X.1.1. What sort of accounts should we give in psychology? · 614

X.1.2. Is there movement in the soul? · 615

X.1.3. What type of entity is the soul? · 616

X.1.4. What accounts for thinking and knowledge? · 619

X.1.5. Is the intellect formed in the process of fetal generation? · 622

X.2. Alexander of Aphrodisias · 624

X.2.1. On the Intellect · 626

X.3. Themistius · 632

X.3.1. How to understand the potential and active intellects · 633

X.4. Avicenna · 645

X.4.1. What does Aristotle's definition of the soul tell us? · 645

X.4.2. Is the soul a substance? · 650

X.4.3. How do there come to be many individual human souls? · 653

X.4.4. Can the soul exist after the body has been destroyed? · 655

X.4.5. How does the human intellect come to know abstract essences? · 659

X.4.6. How does the intellect think? · 661

X.4.7. How does the soul relate to its powers? · 667

X.5. Averroes · 673

X.5.1. The nature of the material intellect · 674

X.5.2. The role of the agent intellect · 688

X.6 Siger of Brabant and Thomas Aquinas · 698

X.6.1. How does the intellect unite with the body? · 700

X.6.2. Why the intellectual soul must be the form of the body · 711

X.6.3. Why the Averroists are wrong · 718

X.6.4. How Albert and Thomas go wrong · 727

X.7 Peter John Olivi · 735

X.7.1. Why the human soul cannot be the form of the body · 736

X.8. John Buridan · 755

X.8.1. In what way is the soul an actuality? · 755

X.8.2. How many souls does an individual have? · 766

X.8.3. Is the soul just its powers? · 770

X.8.4. How many powers does the soul have? · 774

X.8.5. Can the soul be spread throughout the body? · 777

X.8.6. Is the intellect passive as regards its objects? · 783

X.8.7. Can what knows something have the character of what it knows? · 786

X.8.8. Three theories about the intellect · 789

BIOGRAPHIES · 803

GLOSSARY · 810

SOURCES · 822

BIBLIOGRAPHY · 829