

Aspects of

PHONOLOGICAL
THEORY

PAUL M. POSTAL

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
PART I. AUTONOMOUS PHONOLOGY: PRO AND CON
SECTION I. A FALLACIOUS ARGUMENT FOR AUTONOMOUS PHONOLOGY
1. A Purported Justification for Autonomous Phonemics The Rasic Argument • The Fallacy	3
2. Further Commentary on Contrast and Autonomous Phonemics A Variant of the Argument • Some Implications of the Fallacy • On the Rasis of the Fallacy	19
SECTION II. REAL ARGUMENTS AGAINST AUTONOMOUS PHONOLOGY
3. Failure of the Stratificational Defense of Autonomous Phonemics Preliminaries • An Older Type of Argument • Initial Failure Appendix: Rrief Comments on Lamb's 'Prolegomena to a Theory of Phonology'	33
4. Phonetic-Phonological Relations and the Deeper Failure of Stratificational Phonemics The Naturalness Condition • Stratificational Phonemics as a Violation of the Naturalness Condition • Summary	53
5. Incoherence in Stratificational Phonemics	97
6. Nonphonetic Properties in Phonology Rackground • Categorical Properties • Feature Properties • Exception Properties	114
7. Rule Ordering and Stratificational Phonology Background • The Meaning of Rule Order • A Set of Ordered Rules in Mohawk • Consequences	140

8. Marked and Unmarked in Phonological Structure Some Comments on Dictionary Entries • The Early Theory of Systematic Phonemic Dictionary Representation • Fundamentals of the Marked-Unmarked Asymmetrical Theory of Phonological Representation • Appendix: The Incompatibility of Stratificational Grammar and a Lexicon	153
9. New Types of Argument Against Autonomous Phonology The Argument from Phonotactics • The Argu- ment from the Nontransitivity of Contrast	208
PART II. ON THE MENTALISTIC CHARACTER OF SO- CALLED 'SOUND CHANGE'
SECTION I. BACKGROUND AND THE NEOGRAM- MARIAN POSITION
10. The Problem Fundamentals • An Issue in the Theory of Sound Change	231
SECTION II. EMPIRICAL DISCONFIRMATION OF THE NEOGRAMMARIAN POSITION
11. Some Iroquoian Sound Changes Mohawk • Oneida • Alternatives	245
12. Further Commentary on Nonphonetic Sound Changes	261
SECTION III. THE NATURE OF SOUND CHANGE
13. What Is Sound Change? The Mentalistic Character of Sound Change • The Methodological Argument • Some Remarks on the 'Causes of Sound Change'	269
14. Hockett's Present Position	286
15. Conclusion Concluding Remarks on Sound Change • Gen- eral Conclusion	308
Ribliography	317