

Arild Holt-Jensen

Geography

History and Concepts: A Student's Guide

FOURTH EDITION

CONTENTS

Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	xiv
1 WHAT IS GEOGRAPHY?	1
Introduction	1
Exploration and the cosmographic tradition	4
A science of synthesis	4
An organizational plan of geography	14
A new synthesis?	16
Homo geographicus	21
Specialization and pluralism	26
2 THE FOUNDATION OF GEOGRAPHY	33
Geography in the ancient world	33
Middle Ages and the Renaissance	36
Varenus	38
The philosopher, Immanuel Kant	40
The 'classical' period	42
From cosmography to an institutionalized discipline	46
Darwinism	52
The social anarchists	55
Morphology and physiography provide academic respect	60
Environmental determinism and possibilism	62
The French school of regional geography	66
Landscapes and regions	70
Regional studies in Britain	75
3 GEOGRAPHY, 1950s–1980s: 30 YEARS OF PROGRESS	79
Changing job market	79
The development of applied geography	80
A discipline ripe for change	82
The growth of spatial science	83
Critics of the spatial science school	92
The achievements of spatial science	94

4 PARADIGMS AND REVOLUTIONS	100
Kuhn's paradigms	101
Critics of Kuhn	104
Induction, deduction and abduction	105
Changing paradigms in geography?	111
An idiographic or nomothetic science?	115
Absolute and relative space	116
What kind of revolution?	118
A 'critical' revolution?	121
Revolution or evolution?	122
5 POSITIVISM AND ITS CRITICS	125
Positivism and critical theory	125
The development of positivism	126
Principles in positivism	128
Criticisms of positivism	129
Dialectics, Hegel and Marx: breaking down binaries	131
Science as a force transforming society	133
Practical consequences for research	135
Geography and empiricism	137
The positivism of spatial science	142
Humanistic approaches	143
Behavioural and welfare geography	150
Structuralism	155
6 NEW TRENDS AND IDEAS	160
Structuration theory	160
Realism	163
Poststructuralism	168
Postmodernism	178
Gender and feminist geography	181
New tools in geographical research: satellite photos and GIS	187
The rediscovery of nature: actor-network theory and hybridity	193
Vernacular and academic definitions of geography	197
Conclusions	204
Glossary and Subject Index	212
References and Bibliography	236
Author and Personality Index	253